September 8, 2010. The local drug store is already stocking out the Christmas stuff...

... and I thought Walmart was bad.

I have a confession to make.

Remember this? Well, it wasn't from the users of the ASN. It was from... me. I bought myself the box set of Stargate Atlantis when it was on sale at Amazon.com. I said it was from the users of the ASN because... well... I don't know why. Maybe it was attempting to fulfill some pathetic need for validation. Maybe it was to hide the fact I spent the money from my wife (not really, she's in charge of the money anyway).

Whatever the reason, I felt the need to tell you... the users of the ASN haven't sent me any goodies at all. Nada, zilch, nothing. Not that I'm expecting anything, mind you. I've been hosting the ASN because I love Stargate and want other people to discover its awesomeness.

I just wish MGM would have given us some sort of acknowledgment at this point. We've tried many times to get official permission to do what we're doing... only to be ignored. Makes me sad.

This past month, my wife has discovered Steampunk. She has fallen in love with the style and has been enjoying the genre's books so far.

So, I put together her second piece for her new wardrobe. The first, is a hat she found at a recent local arts and crafts festival. Here is her new, steampunk inspired watch:

Her arms are a bit tiny, so she's going to end up with the look of the typical engineer girl wearing the huge gadgets that she got from her dad.

I saw the film Inception tonight.

It was double rainbow all the way!

Seriously... it is a brilliant film filled with subtle details, nuances, and plenty of unpredictable questions. I'm still working it all out in my head. I loved this film.
